Moving Trade into the 21st Century: Towards a More Inclusive Trade Agenda?

Written by Markus Wagner

International organizations sometimes publish general reports – in addition to the usual annual versions – about their work and the future of their remit. Such reports invariably have a theme and are done when these organizations or the work they carry out has come under challenge. In 2005, on the occasion of the WTO's so-called Sutherland report, Armin von Bogdandy and I found that:

"[a] perception of institutional crisis is pervading international organizations. One evermore fashionable response by the
